But we've never used pet names for each other.

Like Korean lovers, British couples also call each other with names such as honey, darling, baby, love and so on.

Honey

We've been together for almost 6 years

So once I called Mev
'baby' a long time ago.

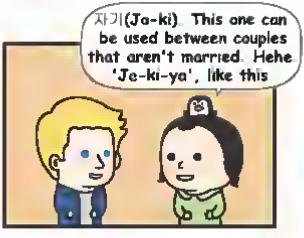
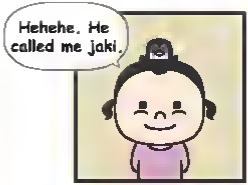
But he absolutely didn't like it so since that time, I've never called him
by any other names

Recently one day, Mev asked me what Korean people call their lovers in Korean.



I thought he was simply wandering
so I answered him without thinking



I don't know why this simple word makes me feel so romantic and happy.

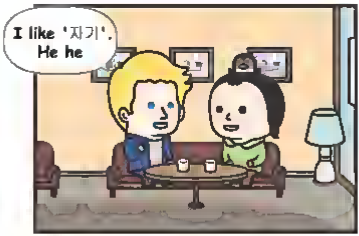
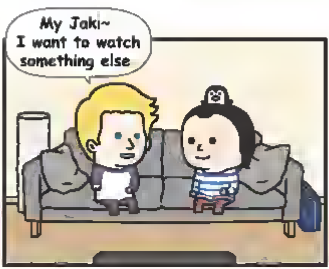
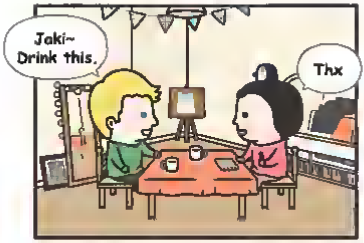
I guess it's because I know that there is only one person who can call me by this name.



But perhaps,
his personality had changed or something.
Since that time,...





he's often called me Ja-ki.

So I feel special whenever I call him by that name or be called it by him.

The reason that he likes this specific name was...

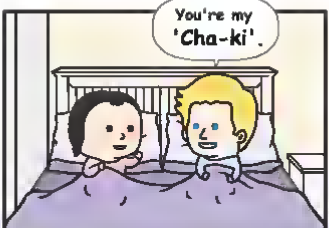
*자기(Cha-ki) kick.



... because he thought
'Ja-ki' was 'Cha-ki' which means kick.

I'm going to kick you.

Bang-BANG-Pang.
Jaki-Chaki-Jjaki...Jaki!

There was no romance.
There was only affection for Taekwondo from Mev